Form 990-EZ, Part III - Organization's Primary Exempt Purpose

Escaping their abusers is the priority for domestic violence (DV) victims. However, unless they have their own vehicles, public transportation is not always an option for many victims due to safety concerns. Ridesharing and Uber are not always an option either for victims that lack a phone or credit card, or fear their abuser will discover the transaction details. Transporting victims to available shelter or family support outside the local area is beyond the scope of most DV agencies. Families to Freedom bridges that gap by providing no-cost, long-distance transportation for DV victims to available shelters across North Texas or family safe areas across the country. Victims are frequently referred to Families to Freedom through other agencies and civic professionals, including police agency crime victim advocates, Child Protective Services, domestic violence shelters, medical facility social workers, and counselors. We also receive calls directly from victims without referrals. Our response to each victim client is tailored to their fragile emotional state, exercising an acute sensitivity in understanding that they are abuse survivors and knowing they have unique travel needs. In 2018, Families to Freedom transported 555 people (278 adults and 277 Children) and 37 Pets. There were also 210 callers we were unable to help due to a variety of reasons such as not being a resident of North Texas or not a victim of abuse or not having a shelter or home destination. 165 victims cancelled their need for service, 13 callers were helped solely through referral to other agencies or with only safety planning guidance, and 6 victims who called in 2018 completed their travel in 2019. In 2019, due to a planned awareness campaign, we are expecting an increase in our client load and are preparing to transport nearly 600+ people, based on current call volume trends. Families to Freedom is currently an all-volunteer organization with 80 people tasked with duties ranging from transporting victims to answering hotline calls, fundraising, handling travel logistics and clerical tasks. Yet, depending solely on volunteers is not a sustainable system for those tasks that need a consistent point-of-contact for accountability and ensured execution. With this in mind, Families to Freedom has initiated efforts in 2019 to solicit Government grant funding to support some level of part-time, paid employees. In 2018, approximately 80% of revenue received was from private, individual donations. In 2019, it's expected this ratio will decrease despite an increase in total revenue dollars from this source.
